Cooking Corn

Life in a Timorese village

2 Cooking Corn

This is a story about a little boy in Timor-Leste called Natalino.

Every morning, Natalino's mum and dad wake up at 5 am. Natalino's dad gets the fire started.

Natalino's mum starts sorting through the corn to pick out all the little stones and bad bits of corn.

Once the corn is cleaned, Natalino's mum puts it into a pot of boiling water to cook.

Natalino's dad chops up some more wood to keep the fire burning strong and hot.

4 Cooking Corn

They get up so early and do the cooking so that Natalino can have a good breakfast before he goes to school.

Natalino always has a big bowl of corn and a cup of water before he goes to school.

Natalino leaves for school at 6.30 am, because he has to walk 5 km to get to school. There are no cars or buses to take kids to school in Natalino's village.

6 Cooking Corn

While Natalino is in school, his mum and dad do their work. His mum washes the clothes, cleans the house, and carries the water up from the river. His dad works in the fields to grow the corn and the other food that they eat.

Then Natalino's mum and dad start cooking again for the evening meal.

Natalino's mum is cooking rice and vegetables for their meal that night. They have rice and vegetables every night for dinner.

Sometimes, if they have a visitor, Natalino's dad will kill one of their chickens so that they can serve meat for their visitor.

When Natalino gets home, he tells his mum and dad about everything he learned in school that day.

Natalino's mum and dad never learned to read, so Natalino always helps them by sharing everything he learned at school with them.

That night they all sit down and have dinner together. They are all very happy because they have enough food to eat three meals a day.

Natalino always eats two plates of rice and veggies at night time because it is so yummy!
